The foreign exchange market, although nominal as to rates, shows the increasing effect of scarcity of exchange. Nothis quoted in sterling cables below with 5.65 for demand. The best authorities continued to lay stress on the fact that there can be no appreciable betterment in the international situation, until the foreign exchange market has been opened up, and resumes compara-tivly normal conditions.

New York bankers at the moment are not buying paper, leaving that market chiefly to the country bankers. Discount operations at below 7 per cent are the exception. In the local money market there has been no change so far as standing call loans are concerned. Some banks are charging a per cent, and others, the majority, are charging 6 per cent,

Weak Stock Accounts.

A member of one of the stock exchange suses believes that brokers are not as a rule, putting forth the efforts they should in demanding that the weak ac-counts on their books be strengthened. "Ine attlude of many customers," he says, "whose margines have been brought down to slim proportions by the slump in prices in that they should worry' now that the exchange is closed. Thus if when the exchange opens there is any temporary further recessions in prices, many accounts will have to be iquidated. I believe it is entirely posship to eliminate these weak spots to a large extent while the exchange is closed. In a great many cases customers who have not taken the trouble to raise money to further margin their ac-counts would do so if their brokers took a firm stand on the matter. If no more

NEW YORK COTTON MARKET.

New York, Aug. 22—Cotton discussions appear to be enhulted in a decision on some points which are likely to mislead the casual observers. Earlimates that from 3,000,000 to 5,000,000 bales of cotton will require to be financed are far below the probabilities, if not facts, which should now be admitted. If the total crop to be harvested shall turn out to be 18,500,000 bales, over 13,00,000 bales will be through the gin-boiness and ready for the market before January 1, 1915. This means that it should be haled and result for shipment under ordinary circumstances.

Cotton's Poor Position.

The Southern organizers are mentioning 12 cents and 121-2 cents a pound as the minimum for which they should hold the cotton crop. This will depend very much on their capacity to hold cotton by the aid of liberal governmental provisions for lending money. The mills are singularly silent as to what they may do in the premises.

The cotton manufacturers are not likely to be erithusiastic in promoting any plan which would help to given an ar-
